KIN YOU REMEMBER?

KIN YOU REMEMBER that old-fashioned hired girl that used to work for three dollars a week? She did the washing, tended the furnace and sprinkled the lawn, and always looked happy when she got an evening off. Well, the lady of the kitchen told us the other day, if we didn't get her a baby grand, an upstairs girl, a second cook, a butler and somebody to answer the telephone, we could get our own corned beef and cabbage, as far as she was concerned—and she meant it.

AMERICAN JAZZ MAKE WONDERFUL HIT IN EUROPE

Berlin, Oct. 11.—Ten years ago America paid fancy prices for standing room to see imported European musical comedies; today Europe turns eagerly to America for the latest jazz hit. An American musical comedy will back a European show off the boards.

"The war taught New York producers that American composers and playwrights can write better musical comedies than we can bring over from Europe," declares Gustave Arnberg of New York, who is purchasing European plays and operettas for the Shubert theatrical interests. Mr. Arnberg should know; for he has been importing European shows into the United States for the past twenty-five years. "We learned that the war substitute made in America is better than the imported article."

New York Succeeds Vienna.

Vienna was the world's capital of operetta before the war. There is every indication that New York has succeeded to the title. Negotiations are under way which will remove Vienna's last claims, for Americans are arranging to take Lehár, Oscar Strauss, Leo Fall and Kálmán to the United States.

Vienna musical comedies were given the acid test during the war, and they showed up anything but well. Some of the big Austrian hits were smuggled to New York and produced as American compositions. Shorn of the glamour of their foreign titles and of the names of their famous foreign composers the productions failed.

Kálmán's latest piece, "The Holland Maiden," which is playing to standing room in the big Metropolitan Theatre, Berlin, and promises to be the season's hit, is a striking example of the reason why Vienna operetta can't compete with New York. As to originality the story of Holland Maiden is the world's oldest, most venerable bewhiskered musical comedy plot. It is the story of the opera Martha, Walt Dream, Count of Luxembourg, and a dozen others; royalty, a former marriage, rebellious Prince and Princess, runaway, Prince and Princess disguise themselves as ordinary folks and fall in love anyway.

American jazz has captured allied countries and has a thorough foothold in neutral lands. In Copenhagen and The Hague you will hear the latest American ragtime. Jazz is making its way among our recent enemies as rapidly as their cheapened money will permit them to pay for it.

Old Chestnuts' Popularity.

In Berlin you will pay a whole pocketful of marks or about fifteen dollars in real money to dance to "Moonlight Bay" or "I Want to be in Dixie." The European has not yet been trained up to the point of the American's disgust for last month's hit which is this month's aggravation. A good one-step, especially when it is genuine American rag time, remains a good one-step even if it is entitled "Wait Till the Sun Shines Nellie."

Until her death Gaby Deslys, in Marseilles and Paris, made you pay prices that would make a Broadway scapier blush and hold his breath, to listen to French words sung to American music none of which was newer than four or five years old.

Much of the European attempt to render American ragtime reminds one of the highbrow lady music teacher who never played anything less than Liszt in her life, but who will gingerly attempt a piece of the despoiled ten-cent-store music just to please the company present. Your American jazz soul recognizes the music, but you squirm at having your favorite set of Mississippi or Missouri Blues daintily tricked off the piano like a delicate minuet.

Await Jazz Trombone.

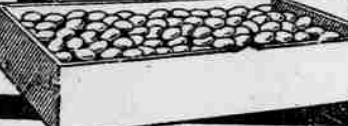

Europe will have real jazz however, until she introduces the saxophone, unknown here, and the sidling player with the palsied hand. She is making progress, however, for the trap drummer is getting more resourceful and he scrapes and pounds and toots in quite the approved fashion.

In the meantime, the craze for American ragtime is on, and fully one-half the evening's programme of any first-class hotel orchestra is made up of more or less back-numbered jazz.

London was chosen by the Board of Directors of the International Chamber of Commerce for the 1921 convention. After a two day session in Paris the chamber adjourned.
